December 24, 2025 | News

Widely recognised for her expertise in delivering transformative business results

Avantor, Inc., a leading global provider of mission-critical products and services to customers in the life sciences and advanced technologies industries, has announced the appointment of Gladys Wang as Vice President (VP), Bioprocessing Commercial for Asia, Middle East and Africa (AMEA).

With over twenty years of experience in life sciences and commercial leadership, Gladys will oversee Avantor's business expansion in the AMEA region, enhance customer success initiatives, and drive the development of strategic partnerships throughout the bioprocessing ecosystem.

Gladys, based in Singapore, has extensive experience collaborating with biopharma manufacturers, contract development and manufacturing organisations (CDMOs), and key opinion leaders. She is widely recognised for her expertise in delivering transformative business results through customer-centric strategies, operational excellence, and effective cross-market collaboration.

Before joining Avantor, Gladys held senior leadership roles at top life sciences organisations, including Head of Global Strategic Accounts APAC and Senior Director for Bioprocessing South Asia & Oceania. She was instrumental in accelerating

Asia-Pacific expansion, delivering material business growth through disciplined market-entry strategy.
