BioSpectrum
the business of Bio & Health Sciences
ASIA EDITION

Lianluo Smart announces availability of sleep diagnostic offering in more than forty hospitals

January 16, 2019 | News

Its innovative technology offerings have been well received by doctors and patients.

Lianluo Smart Limited, a China based professional smart service and products provider has announced its wearable sleep diagnostic product and cloud-based service from the Company's wholly owned subsidiary, Lianluo Connection Medical Wearable Device Technology Co. Ltd. are now available in more than forty major Chinese public hospitals in China. Its innovative technology offerings have been well received by doctors and patients. As of the end of 2018, these Chinese public hospitals have successfully conducted more than twenty thousand clinical sleep diagnostic study tests.

"Being admitted to major Chinese public hospitals is an important milestone for our company, as we are building solid foundation for unifying diagnostic standard of sleep apnea and related diseases in public hospitals," commented by Mr. Ping Chen, CEO of Lianluo Smart. "We are very pleased to see these more than forty leading Chinese public hospitals adopting our product offering, which not only earns us high industry recognition, but also enables us to move forward with Lianluo Smart's new business strategy."