Agilex Biolabs announces new CEO

February 3, 2023 | News

Stephen McIntyre joins Agilex Biolabs as CEO; Jason Valentine Transitions to COO

Agilex Biolabs, Australia's largest and most technologically advanced regulated bioanalytical and toxicology laboratory, continues its global expansion and corporate evolution as part of the Healius network, with Stephen McIntyre being selected to take the position of Chief Executive Officer (CEO).

McIntyre has a proven record of success in executive leadership, producing transformational expansions and enabling Australian companies to establish and refine their global reach in the pathology and healthcare sectors. His background working in complex and highly regulated markets, both in Australia and globally, paired with a strong track record for facilitating successful mergers and acquisitions, makes him uniquely qualified to lead Agilex towards continued growth and success.

Jason Valentine will remain in an executive leadership role as Chief Operating Officer (COO). Valentine is an original founding member of the company (est. 1996) and as such has been celebrated as the driving force behind Agilex Biolabs' ethos of excellence in customer service and dedication to staying on the leading edge of bioanalytical research in Australia.
