

SLI already supports the Indonesian Ministry of Health's national leprosy program through the WHO, as well as providing assistance to NGOs and PerMaTa, an organisation of persons affected by leprosy.

As part of its support for Indonesia's efforts against the disease, SLI plans to identify several districts and work with local government agencies, healthcare providers and others to develop "zero leprosy" projects that can serve as models for the whole country.