Novasep inks two deals with Japanese firms

Singapore: Further expanding its presence in Asia, Novasep, a global leading supplier of services and technologies for the life sciences and pharmaceutical industries announced collaboration with two Japanese organizations.

The first deal, signed with Allied Laboratories a life science and chemical consulting company, will provide business development and technical services for Novasep in close co-operation with Novasep Asia, the company's Shanghai-based process development and engineering center.

The second agreement was signed with AR Brown to represent Novasep's CMO services in Japan, including both chemical and biological custom manufacturing businesses.

Mr Jacky Perret, Novasep's head of business development in Japan, said, "Japan is an innovative marketplace for the global life sciences industry. Our Japanese customers continuously aim for excellence through leading edge technologies and with these agreements, we will be able to provide them with high-efficiency purification technologies and custom manufacturing services."
